"We don't know anything"

— Thurston Public Utility District (TPUD)
Commissioner Alan Corwin, about the impact of Prop 1

STRAIGHT FROM THE HORSE'S MOUTH

"Rates would be lower than those currently charged by Puget Sound Energy? Really? Have we added the cost of debt service and repayment of monies to purchase PSE infrastructure to projected rates? Have we asked our CFO for even ballpark figures?"

"We don't know anything how we would finance purchase of Puget Sound Energy infrastructure ...How/where would Thurston PUD get the money?"

"We're flying blind. I don't want to be on board this plane when it crashes...The challenges of taking over PSE's service area would be huge and overwhelming."

"We have not done our homework."

What the hay is goin' on?

VOTE NO ON PROP 1

EVEN THEY DON'T KNOW HOW MUCH IT WILL COST

All quotes from official memos by Thurston Public Utility District (TPUD) Commissioner Alan Corwin about the uncertainties and risks of Prop 1. Prop 1 would give the TPUD — a tiny water agency with 12 employees and no experience with electric service — authority to takeover PSE's 120,000-customer electric service in Thurston County.
